A Deadly Dose: Fentanyl, Opioids, and the First Responder (OLS-V1)

Provides information on fentanyl, synthetic opioids, and other related substances. The escalating use of fentanyl-related substances increases the risk to responders during routine law enforcement emergencies or life-saving activities and should be treated with extreme caution to avoid health-related complications. Additionally, information on substance recognition, PPE, detection, and other best practices will be discussed.

Emergency Response to Chemical Suicides (OLS-V11)

Provides the audience with statistics relative to chemical suicides and the threats they can pose to law enforcement, hazmat teams, and healthcare workers. The presentation will elaborate on response to such incidents and remaining safe while mitigating the toxic threat. Additional guidance on how to prepare a Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) for response to chemical suicides will also be provided.
